MONEY MAD

(AFTER THE OPENING CLARABELLA AND LUCILLE ENTER)

Clarabella

Now, just remember to watch your step and you will be the wealthy Mrs Harvey Wiemer.

Lucille

Don't worry, mother, I'm going to get the Wiemer millions if I have to turn high jacker to do it.

Clarabella

Oh, dear, If I were only younger. I'd be running competition with you for Harvey. I think he's the nicest man with all his money.

Lucille

Yes, but I don't love him. Its his money I love

Clarabella

You're a true child of your mother, Lucille. Money makes the world merry. Landsakes, I married your father twenty years ago and he was one of the wealthiest men in the country.

Lucille

But if you don't quit, your gambling on the market, mother, we'll soon be poverty stricken.

Clarabella

I know it, thats why I'm so anxious for you to marry Harvey. ~~this~~ the moment this estate is turned over to him. My last loss in cotton, cut your father's fortune down to almost nothing.

Lucille

Mother, do you realize that I've never seen my father---that is, not since I was two years old?

Clarabella

Oh well---you didn't miss much.

Lucille

But doesn't it make you feel embarrassed to ~~when that~~ folks in town know that father ran off and left you just because you were so disagreeable.

Clarabella

~~Embarrass~~ me? I should say not. Your father ran away and turned his entire fortune over to me. I was satisfied. I've forgotten about the worm.

Lucille

Well, I don't like to have folks laugh at me and say, "There goes Lucille. Her mother was such a wild cat, old man Boland gave her a fortune to let him go."

Clarabella

Well, if I heard them say that I'd scratch their eyes out---I'd show them I wasn't a cat.

Lucille

You know, mother, there's a chance of Harvey not getting his father's fortune---you know that will--

Clarabella

But that's such a slim chance. Be quiet, here comes Harvey now.

Lucille Harvey

'enters L) Ah, there you are, Lucille (they embrace)

Lucille

Harvey, dear, where have you been?

Harve- Clarabella

Yes, we were talking about you.

Harvey

I've been out in the garden---I had to fire the gardner; he was becoming too fresh. Are you folks enjoying the week end?

Clarabella

Oh my goodness yes. It was so nice of you to invite us up here for the week end. I'd love to stay here all of the time.

Harvey

Well, when Lucille and I are married, you will make this your home, won't you?

Clarabella

Married?

Harvey

Yes. Lucille, will you marry me?

Lucille

Why, Harvey--

Clarabella

Yes, she'll marry you, but this is so sudden---it never entered our mind.

Harvey

I've been wanting to ask you for some time, Lucille, but I thought I had better wait until my father's fortune was completely in my hands.

Clarabella

Yes, we'll wait until it is before we do anything.

Harvey

Well, that won't be long now. Parker is coming over with the will, and unless my long lost brother Warren shows up the property is mine.

Lucille

Is there any chance of Warren showing up?

Harvey

I don't see how. He has been gone for nearly twenty years now. He ran away from home when he was just eighteen. Father disinherited him, but for some reason or other he softened up before he died, and stipulated in his will that if Warren returned on this day the entire estate would go to him instead of me.

Clarabella

Why, Harvey you wouldn't get a cent then, would you?

Harvey

Not a penny. I wouldn't be entirely dependent upon my brother for support.

Clarabella

(aside to Lucille) Daughter, you better wait and see if Warren shows up, if he does, you'll have to chase him.

Parker

(enters with lawyers brief case R) Hello, folks, great afternoon isn't it?

Lucille

(shows joy at seeing Parker) Oh, Parker, how nice to have you here.

Parker

Yes, and you here too,---we 'll have a good time now.

Clarabella

(grabbing Lucille's hand) Flat head, act like you're engaged to Harvey; he's the one that has the dough.

Lucille

Oh yes. Parker, I have the most wonderful news for you.

Parker

What is it?

Lucille

Harvey and I are engaged to be married.

Parker

(drops case) Well, I'll be damned! (looks down hearted)

Lucille

We just knew you'd be tickled.

Harvey

Well, are you already to have the will signed, Parker?

Parker

Yes, but it must be read first.

Harvey

Well, lets read it, you're the lawyer, now do things right.

Parker

I wouldn't be a lawyer if I did.

Harvey

I'm anxious to get that money in my hand.

Parker

I hate to do this, Harvey. (goes to table lays brief case out)

Harvey

Why?

Parker

After you've signed your name on the dotted line, you will be worth one million dollars more than I am.

Clarabella

Quick, Harvey, sign!

Parker

Just, think, Harvey, you'll be a millionaire.

Clarabella

Isn't it wonderful? I'll---I mean we'll be a millionaire.

Harvey

Well, go ahead and read the will.

Parker

Sit down then, and listen. I must have some dignity, since I am the lawyer. (they all sit down. Harvey and Lucille on the settee)

Clarabella

You don't make a good lawyer at all, Parker.

Parker

And why not?

Clarabella

You're too honest looking.

Parker

Silence in the courtroom! (takes will and reads) I, Andrew Wiemer at my death bed write this letter my last will and testament My entire estate will go to Harvey Wiemer unless my son, Warren Wiemer, who left me twenty years ago returns at three o'clock Oon the afternoon of May 17, 1928. In event, that said-Warren Wiemer returns, he will sing this will, and the entire fortune will be turned over to him. If my property must go to my son Harvey, I trust that he will use it more wisely than he ever did during my spell of life. Signed, Anderw Wiemer.

Clarabella

Isn't that a strange will?

Pakrer

It seems as though, he expected Warren to return.

Harvey

(looks at watch) It's now three minutes to three (laughs) Soon I'll be a wealthy man.

Parker

Of course there's hardly any chance for your brother Warren to show up.

Harvey

I hope not. Strange my father would make such a will at his death bed. Did he expect my brother to return? In the old will, my brother was not even mentioned; everthing went to me.

Clarabella

Oh, Warren is probably dead by now, or we would surely have heard from him.

Harvey

He's probably a bum, or a tramp. That was all he ever aimed at.

Ever since I can remember him, he was always running away from home just to roam about the country. Father turned him out the last time because he was so shiftless.

Parker

Your father wasn't any too proud of you, Harvey. When he died he said to me one day while he was ill that he thought of the two boys, you were the most lazy and good for nothing.

Harvey

I know it, dad, wanted me to go to work. But why should I? I've always had money, and now I probably always ill. Why should I go to work?

Parker

Your father was always so industrious himself, he couldn't stand to see any one who wouldn't work. Poor old man, I wish I were one of his sons.

Harvey

(looks at watch) I'm going to sign that paper, Parker.

Parker

(looks at watch) You have a half minute yet.

Harvey

Don't be silly, do you expect my brother to show up within a half minute. He's probably thousands of miles away from here

Parker

Never the less, we'll carry out your father's instructions to a tee.

Clarabella

Oh, I'm so nervous. This suspense is just terrible. Parker, let him sign so they can get married.

Parker

He has fifteen seconds now.

Harvey

(takes fountain pen and is already to sign) Fifteen little seconds from a million dollars. Oh boy!

Parker

Five seconds now!

Clarabella

(biting finger nails) Hurry up, or I won't have any fingernails left.

Parker

Three---two---one! It is exactly three o'clock; your brother is not here. Now sign!

Harvey

(starts) My million! It is mine.

Warren

(appears in center door comes down to table signs paper with no show of emotion at all) No it is MINE!

All

Warren!

Warren

Howdy. Just arrived on a box car. Thought I'd come in and get a little dough. (Ananias enters) Meet my pard, Ananias.

Ananias

(makes bow)

Clarabella

(screams) MY husband!

Ananias

My wife! Good Lord! Oh Hell!

(ALL ARE BACK ON IN SAME POSITIONS)

Parker

But how did you know about your father's will?

Warren

I came to see him before he died.

Harvey

Well I don't think it's right. This looks like a fake to me. Father disinherited you once, and now when the money is almost mine, you show up---we all though you were dead.

Warren

I'm sorry to disappoint you.

Harvey

Well, what are you going to do, take over the house, and run me out of it?

Warren

No, brother, you are always welcome to stay in this old house I'm not going to bother you, I'm only going to enjoy the wealth that is mine.

Ananias

(starts for door) Well, so long, old Pard.

Warren

Where are you going?

Ananias

Back to the road. Yer rich now, you don't want no bum haning on you when yer in society.

Warren

You're going to stay right here, Ananias. You've been my pardner for twenty years, and now when I'm rich do you think I'm going to forget you. No sir, you're going to stay and help me spend my money.

Ananias

Ta hell I am. (points to Clarabella) Do you see that lop eyed fish face over there---that was my wife. I used to be the richest man in this town, then I married Miss Hatchet face, and she made so much trouble for me, always bothering about money, and society that I up and left her, deeded all my money to her to let me get loose, and son, it was worth it.

Clarabella

Oh, you old reprobate, you, how dare you talk that way about me. And here's your little daughter. Just think she was only two years old when you left.

Ananias

(looking at Lucille) Is that my daughter?

Lucille

Mother, don't tell me that beastly tramp is my father.

Ananias

(laughs) Oh fer God's sake, a chip off the old block head. I might have known my daughter would grow up to be one of them high falutin ladies. Well, Clarabella, my little gum drop, how's the money holding out?

Clarabella

Please don't address me so familiarly.

Ananias

(laughs) Oh pardon me, I thought I was still your husband.

Warren

(Looking about room) Well, the old place is just about the same. Doesn't seem to have changed so much.

Parker

Well, surely Warren now that you have so much money, you will at least dress decently and try to uphold the old Wiener dignity in the community.

Warren

The money is mine, I shall do as I please.

Harvey

Suppose you'll squander it away like any bum would.

Warren

Squander it away? It seems to me, Harvey, that you are a pretty fair hand at wasting money yourself. That's the reason dad left the money to me. He was tired of your shiftlessness. YOU've never known what it was to hustle for a meal, to have sleep out in the open. Money made a worthless rotter out of you. I'm glad I ran away, for although I've been just a bum, I've always been a man.

Harvey

Don't I get any money or provision at all?

Warren

I'll see that you get a place to eat and sleep yes. Did you ever try working for something to live by?

Clarabella

Harvey, I suppose you now realize that the marriage between you and my daughter is impossible?

Harvey

Lucille, you're not going to turn me down, are you?

Lucille

Well---I--

Clarabella

Lucille, dear---look at Warren. I'll bet he's a nice man when he's dressed up. But, come darling, we must go and dress for dinner. You gentlemen, will excuse us please.

Parker

Certainly.

Clarabella

(going to R where Ananias is standing in the way) Beast, let us pass. (he steps aside and they both hold their noses in the air and exit)

Ananias

I wish I had a ball bat.

Warren

Well, now, brother there's no use in us being enemies, lets shake hands and be friends. (offers hand)

Harvey

(refuses hand) Come on, Parker, let's go in the study. I have something I want to talk to you about.

Parker

Very well! (they both exit L)

Ananias

Good thing it ain't raining or they shure would get water in their snoots!

Warren

(laughs) Dear old dad--he forgave me---said he was proud of me.

Ananias

And he disowned you once.

Warren

Yes, but the night I came to see him, he told me that he was proud of me even if I did choose to bum around the country. He said I was better than my brother. The only difference between Harvey and I is---he is a dressed up tramp, and I'm not.

Ananias

But, listen, you ain't goin' to get up stage with all yer dough now, are ye? Say, pard, let's get rid of it and go back to the high-ways. I don't feel right with all this jack sticking around.

Warren

No, Ananias, we're going to stay right here. I'm going to do some reforming.

Ananias

Who the devil you gonna reform?

Warren

My brother. I'm going to make my brother go to work. If he had to dig around for somewhere to eat and sleep like you and I have done, he might be a half way decent fellow.

Ananias

Well, he might at that. Money is the ruination of any one. It pilutes 'em! I don't like it.

Warren

But, Ananias, whatever I do you're with me aren't you?

Ananias

Yes, till the statue of Liberty spits in the Arkansas River!

(PARKER AND HARVEY ENTER)

Harvey

Barker, you've got to do something. I can't stand this. That cussed brother of mine won't give me a penny for anything. All I get out of my father's money is a place to eat and sleep.

Parker

It certainly is embarrassing for you.

Harvey

Yes, Warren has been here three months now, and he's just the same a become my ruler. Damn it, I'm not going to stand for it.

Parker

What are you going to do?

Harvey

You're a lawyer, what can I do?

Parker

Nothing. Your father made the will, your brother showed up. The money is his, that's all there is to it.

Harvey

Brother! He doesn't seem like a brother to me. He seems more like a hated enemy. That's what he is, my enemy. Look what he's done, ruined my chances with Lucille. There I was engaged to marry her, and of course she wouldn't marry me the way I'm fixed now,

Parker

No, she's sort of taken a liking to your brother now. I suppose it's his money. (sighs) I wish I had a billion dollars.

Harvey

Well, I wish I had what is rightfully mine. Why should my father have given that money to Warren? It isn't fair.

Parker

You must remember you and your father didn't get along so well before he died. But, say I have a happy thought. You know the old will, your father had?

Harvey

Yes.

Parker

Well in that everything is given to you with no mention of Warren at all.

Harvey

Harvey

Yes, but when my father got angry at me that night, he made this new will and told you to tear up the old one, didn't he?

Parker

Yes, but I didn't tear it up.

Harvey

You didn't?

Parker

No, I just put it in my safe. I knew how your father was, terribly hot tempered, and not feeling well, I thought perhaps he would repent later, and want the old will restored.

Harvey

Well, what's your plan?

Parker

The courst, don't you see it? If I can get the doctor to say that old Wimer was not in his right mind at the time of the will that will make it null and void. We'll fight the thing out in court and have the old will put into effect.

Harvey

But can we do it?

Parker

How much will you give me if I get it for you?

Harvey

Fifteen thousand dollars.

Parker

Then watch me get busy. I'm going to see Doctor Shultz today.

Harvey

Do, and if you are successful I'll be your lief long friend.

Parker, I've just got to have money.

Parker

So have I.

Harvey

Get busy too, for at the rate my brother is spending money now there won't be any left by the time the will is contested.

Ananias

(Bof stage) Whoa, stop dadburn ye, whoa!

Harvey

Listen, there's that inhuman thing my brother calls his pard. I can't stand him.

Parker

He's a camical sketch!

Ananias

(enters all rigged out in outladnsih riding habit) Ah, my friends I'm glad to see you all on such a sun shiny day.

Parker

But ehs sun is not shi ing.

Ananias

Well, then I'll be glad to see you on some day when it is shining. (brushes clothes) Deah, me I've been riding all afternoon and I'm quite worn down to a nubb. Where's my Pard?

Harvey

How should I know?

Ananias

I don't see how you know anything.

Harvey

Sir! I'll have you to understand that I don't have to be insulted by you.

Ananias

You don't have to be, but you are.

Harvey

You're a disgrace to the name of Wimer. My brother and you are the talk of the town. You tramps!

Ananias

Don't call me a-tramp, you tramp. I'm not a tramp, I'm a highly cultivated, strictly modern gentleman of the great tribe of aristocratic bums, affiliated in the U S of America.

Harvey

What are you talking about?

Ananias

I'll be damned if I know.

Warren

(enters all cleaned up and neat suit on) Ananias, I've been looking for you.

Ananias

Well, what's on-your mind, pard.

Warren

I'll tell you after awhile. Harvey, did you say you wished fifty dollars?

Harvey

Yes, I did.

Warren

What do you want to do with it?

Harvey

Is that any of your business?

Warren

I'm making it some, never the less.

Harvey

Well I won't tell you.

Warren

Then you won't get it.

Harvey

(angered) Hafe I got to mind you like a little child? Do I have to beg for every cent I get?

Warren

Yes.

Harvey

Oh damn it! (Parker and Harvey exit R)

Ananias

(laughs) That shore does me good.

Warren

How my brother loves me! But, Ananias, what are you doing in that outfit?

Ananias

Oh this is the latest in riding habits.

Warren

It looks to me like a poor habit to get into.

Ananias

Well, my horse likes it anyway. But what did you want to talk to me about?

Warren

Well, it's a very important thing in my life, old pard. I hope you'll look at things as I do.

Ananias

Well, let's hear what's on your mind?

Warren

Ananias, I'm in love.

Ananias

Huh? Well, you flat head!

Warren

Why do you say that? There's such a things as love in the world.

you know. Just because you married and were unhappy is no sign that I should be.

Ananias

Listen, pard, I don't know who the dame is you've got on your mind, but whoever she is, she aint marryin' you for love, she's marrying you for your dough. Get with it and cut it out. Who is the skirt?

Warren

Your daughter, Lucille.

Ananias

Huh, well you poor benighted billy goat you. You mean to tell me you've fallen for that gold digging gal?

Warren

Why, Ananias, that's no way to talk about your daughter, is it?

Ananias

Daughter, hump! Why call her my daughter, she won't even speak to me. She don't even seem like any relation to me. I never had anything to do with raising her.

Warren

Well, I should have thought you would felt some duty toward s the child.

Ananias

Duty! I didn't even know I was a papa until one day I came home from a trip, and the butler told me we had an addition in the family. I asked him if it was the old lady or the bulldog.

Warren

Well, never the less, I'm going to ask Lucille to marry me.

Ananias

Well, she'll say yes with all the dough you got.

Warren

Don't say that. My money means no more to her than---

Ananias

Water does to a fish.

Warren

If she says yes, I'll take her out on our little ranch in Colo- And say, Ananias, why don't you try to make up with her, and take her out there too. Then we 'd be just like big happy family.

Ananias

What me back to that old hell cat. Nix! I'm not a glutton for punishment. Gee, listen, pard, forgete the gal. Let's get rid of the money, and go back to the highways, the railways, and the trampways.

Warren

No, Ananias, I'm through being a bum. I'm going to settle down. The life we've led was all right, but it doesn't really get you anywhere. If Lucille will marry me, I'll be willing to settle down and never move from one spot.

Ananias

Well, I'll tell you what I'll bet. If you was to lose all your dough right now, Lucille would turn you down flatter than a pancake.

Warren

No, she wouldn't. He loves me.

Ananias

How do you know she does.

Warren

Byt the look in her eyes.

Ananias

You d enn fool, one of her eyes is creeked different from the other. That's what makes her look that way.

Lucille

(enters C) Oh, Warren, there you are.

Warren

(takes her by arms) Yes, dear.

Lucille

I'm so excited. The girls are giving a little picnic down by the lake, and I want you to go, then we're going to a dance at the Club this evening, and tomorrow night, Warren, you must take mother and I to the Opera.

Ananias

Opera! Well, I hope the cat has kittens! Warren, are you gettin' to be one of them society dudes. If you are, just let me know so I can fill you full of lead.

Warren

Nonsense, pard. I've got to keep up the social standard of the my father's name. It wouldn't look right if I didn't. I'm just slowly gaining back my good name in this town.

Ananias

Dadburn if it aint got you too. I thought you was immune to money, but now you're just as bad as yer brother. Gee, you've changed since you got to be rich.

Lucille

Oh, Warren, ask that horrid man to leave won't you?

Ananias

Horrid man! Say, gal, don't talk to me like that. I'm yer pa, and I've got a right to tan your hide if I take a notion.

Lucille

My father, indeed, oh its disgraceful.

Ananias

Well, I aint a dern bit prouder of you than you are me. You sure aint no child of mine, you take right after yer ma. High falutin and not worth a damn! Listen, that's my pard there, and if you marry him, yer going to treat him right, or I'll bust a board over your neck.

Warren

Ananias. a quiet.

mother

Lucille

Marry one

Ananias

Yes, he got love with you, and he thinks you are. I suppose you've bshokin ' cock eyed at him or something

Warren

Oh, don't pay attention to him, Lucille. Ananias, you get out of here (yes him out right) You'll have to excuse him.

Lucille

Oh I can't thought that he's my father. He seems so crude, so un-

Warren

He may have a exterior but inside him there's a heart of gold. He's all right, he just doesn't know any better.

Lucille

He seems to have been very plainly of something you were saying to him.

Ananias

You mean---

Lucille

(smiling) Warren, what have you been saying about me to him?

Warren

I told him that I loved you.

Lucille

Why didn't you tell me that?

Warren
What would you say if I did?

Lucille
I'd-say-yes Well--what would you want me to say?

Warren
Ditto. Now, I wouldn't get personal for anything in the world, miss, but do you think you'd like a name like Warren Wimer.

Lucille
Warren Wimer. That's a pretty name.

Warren
Think so?

Lucille
Yes. You know, Warren, I can't understand why you ever chose to run away and be a well--

Warren
Be a tramp?

Lucille
Yes. You aren't at all like that man you call pard. You seem a perfect gentleman.

Warren
Did you think so the first day I came here?

Lucille
I thought you were quite a romantic figure. I knew that you were a man of the world. Travelling the way you have, must have afforded you many experiences.

Warren
It's the happiest most carefree life in the world--all of God's green earth to roam about, never staying anywhere too long.

Lucille
But didn't you ever have any desire to settle down.

Warren
Not until you. Lucille, will you marry me?

Lucille
Warren, you really mean it?

Warren
Yes, will you?

Lucille
Yes, Warren, I will. We'll announce our engagement and have the wedding here, or perhaps a more expensive wedding at the church would be better. We could invite more people and make it more pretentious. Then to Europe for our honeymoon.

Warren
Why Europe when there's so much of the good old U S A to see. Lucille, how would you like to live on a ranch.

Lucille
A ranch?

Warren
Yes, after we are married, I'll take you to the greatest, most beautiful country in all the world. There's a little ranch out in Colorado. Ananias, and I had a little money and we bought it. Every year when we were bumming we'd go there and stay for maybe three or four months. I could settle down among the hills and mountains there, and live forever.

Lucille
(shudders) Oh!

Warren
Don't you like that?

Lucille
We live on a horrid old ranch, away off from people and the cities Oh, Warren!

Lucille

(powders nose and gets ready for him)

Warren

(enters) (bus of going past her)

Lucille

Oh, Warren. I---I've changed my mind.

Warren

Lucille!

Lucille

Yes, I was only joking. You were so hasty. Why, Warren, dear,

I just love the east, and that ranch you were talking about.

I can see it now. Just you and I ---you by my side, the golden sun in the west, the calm peacefulness of nature. Why, Warren, we'll live there forever, and ever.

Warren

You're wonderful Lucille. (embrace her) MY little partner!
 You'll like it out there. I'll get you a car and you can drive into Denver ever so often. I'll have the ranch house all fixed
 up. Lucille, it will be heaven on earth.

Lucille

Yes, dear. And now I must go and tell mother. I know she'll simply die of surprise.

Warren

She won't object to our marriage, will she?

Lucille

No---I hardly think so.

Warren

Gee, you've knocked me for a goal. I never thought I'd love a girl like I do you. You're wonderful!

Ananias

(enters)

Lucille

So are you (embrace)

Ananias

Well, I'm a cock eyed horsefly.

Lucille

(throws Warren a kiss at the door and exits R)

Warren

(musing) A golden sun set, the old ranch her by my side. Pard, she's got the most wonderful eyes. They seem to pierce you like t
 the soft radiance of heaven. And she just loves the west.
 We're going out there to settle down, to live forever, just she and I in a little love nest all our own (looks dreamily into space)

Ananias

Say, what da hell's the matter with you?

Parker

Well, I've been getting things all fixed. The doctor has agreed o make this statement for a consideration.

Harvey

You mean he will say that my father was not right when he made the last will?

Parker

Yes, the thing will be contested in the courts today.

Harvey

Good!

Warren

(enters L) Hello, plotting away as usual, eh?

Warren

It doesn't sound so good to you I suppose, but after you've lived there once, you'd never leave. It's God's country I tell you (pouting) Oh, I think its just terrible!

Lucille

Warren

You mean you wouldn't---

Lucille

No, if you think that you're going to take me way out in the wilds to live all of my life, you're mistaken. I shan't do it.

Warren

You mean the engagement is off?

Lucille

Yes.

Warren

All right. I---I'm sorry, Lucille. Gee, I thought I'd found a little partner for life. Well, we'll forget it, but then maybe you'll change your mind.

Lucille

Never! (He exits L, she sits down and cries)

Clarabella

(enters C) Lucille, what are you doing? Have you seen Warren?

Lucille

Yes, but I never want to see him again.

Clarabella

And why not? Has he lost his money?

Lucille

No, but he proposed to me, and ---and---

Clarabella

When's the wedding?

Lucille

He wants to take me out on a ranch with a lot of old cattle.

Clarabella

What did you do? Break the engagement?

Lucille

Yes.

Clarabella

Oh you little fool, have you lost your senses? Lucille, if you've lost that fortune never speak to me again. For heaven sakes, child, get busy. I invest'd some more money on the market, and now we're so close to being broke that I'm about to bust.

Lucille

But, mother, I can't live on a ranch.

Clarabella

You won't have to, that is not long. Marry him, go out to his ranch, stay long enough to raise cane and he'll take you back to town. Landsakes if I was married to him, inside a week he'd be tickled to death to let me go back to town. Now you use your head, or I'll break it for you.

Lucille

But what can I do now?

Clarabella

See him again, give him the calf eye, tell him you're just crazy about ranches, and sunsets, and cowboys. Beg him to take you out there. I'll see that you don't stay long. Landsakes with--all-- if necessary you can get a divorce from him, and that means alimony.

Lucille

Well, I shall try.

Clarabella

Yes, do here, he comes now. Vamp, daughter, vamp, or we'll be going over the hills to the poor house (EXIT C)

Parker

It might interest you, Warren, to know that today that will is going to be contested in the courts, and if I win the case you will not have so much money.

Warren

So you're going to fight me, he. Well, I wish you all the success in the world, but I've got one of the best lawyers in the country. Go ahead and contest.

Harvey

Don't worry, we're going to. Then when I get that money, I'll ~~akte~~ Lucille away from you so quick it will make your head swim. I'll steal her just like you did.

Warren

But supposing she won't accept you?

Harvey

Do you think she loves you?

Warren

Yes.

Parker

(laughs) Ha, ha, that's a good one!

Harvey

(sneering at Warren) Come on, Parker, let's go. (they exit L)

Warren

Everybody seems to think Lucille is a gold digger. Surely she's not deceiving me. I won't believe what they say.

Ananias

(enters) Say, pard, aint you changed your mind yet about gettin' married?

Warren

NO---and I don't care to hear any more about ~~my-fie~~ Lucille.

Ananias

All right, pard. We won't quarrell. YOU're the one that will regret it though. I guess you'll have to marry her to find out. I'll tell you what I'll do, I'll get hitched up with the old lady again, just to show you, I'm in for trying to see you happy.

Warren

That will be fine, Ananias, But are you sure Clarabella will have you?

Ananias

If I tell her, I've got money she will. Listen, write me out a check for several thousand dollars, I want to make a splurge in front of her.

Warren

All right (hands him check book which he signs his name to several of the checks) Here is four blank checks my name is signed to all of them, all you have to do is write in the amount you want and take it to the bank.

Ananias

Fine, now I'll hunt the old wampus kitty up, and talk terms to her.

Warren

Meantime, I'm going down to the bank to attend to some business. I'll see you after awhile. (he exits R)

Ananias

Now, I've got to make love all over again to that old chromo. Gee, I hate these clothes, wish I could wear ~~the~~ tramp stuff.

(Lucille and Clarabella enter C)

Clarabella

Lucille, ask your father where Warren is?

Lucille

I beg your pardon, sir, but could you tell me where my finacee is?

Ananias
Your fiancée? Damned if I know. Did you lose it?
Clarabella
Oh, the ignorant thing. Tell him you mean your future husband.
Ananias
Well, why didn't you say so in the first place. Say, old woman---
Clarabella
Sir!

Ananias
Mam?

Clarabella
Please don't speak to me.

Ananias
But I've got some good news for you. Did you know I'm a rich man now (flashes check book)

Clarabella-
I've got a lot of money I don't want. How would you like to spend it?

Clarabella
What's that?
Clarabella

"hat?

Ananias
I've got a lot of money I don't want. How would you like to spend it?

Clarabella
"hat---say that again.

Ananias
Well, sit down, I want to talk to you, I've got a little proposition to make to you, but ---well will you talk to me?

Clarabella
Yes, I'll talk. Lucille, go hunt Warren. I've got to look into this.

Lucille
All right, Mother (exits L)

Ananias
Now, listen sugar foot, I'm pretty well fixed again in life. Now since your daughter or I mean our daughter is going to marry my pard, naturally I want to go along where ever they go to live.

Clarabella
He's taking her out on a ranch.

Ananias
I know it, and I thought that maybe you might go along out there, and be my---

Clarabella
What?

Ananias
Well, why not, lets settle down. I'll marry you all over again, and we'll have a nice little shack---or I mean house out in the west---only I doubt if it'll be any love nest like Warren's going to have. You need someone to support you, why not let me do it

Clarabella
Oh, Ananias, this is so sudden. (giggles a little)

Ananias
Now don't get kittenish, its a business proposition. Will you or will you won't?

Clarabella
Yes, Ananias, I will. You know we could have a little love nest out on that ranch all our own. I think the West is just wonderful and it wouldn't be at all bad when you had plenty of money and a car.

Ananias

Well now don't got to thinking there's any comforts out there.
You know there ain't anything out there but cattle and cow boys.

Clarabella

Say, just what are cow boys?

Ananias

"hat are they? Why don't you know?

Clarabella

Well, I've got a pretty good idea what they are, but I'm not sure.

Ananias

Well, what do you think they are?

Clarabella

Well, cowboys are little bulls before they're grown up.

Ananias

Ow! (laughs) Little bulls, haven't you ever been around any animals

Clarabella

Not since you left me twanty years ago.

Ananias

No, I mean like cows, and horses.

Clarabella

Well, I did go out riding once last week in the country, and we saw some cows.

Ananias

Were they grazing?

Clarabella

No, they were New Jerseys.

Ananias

Naw, you dumb~~all~~, I mean were they eating grass?

Clarabella

Yes, and them there was a little bitty gow out there trying to eat a big cow up.

Ananias

Oh Lord, I can see where I'm going to hage a fine time with you out there on that ranche. One thing, its forty miles from the nearest town. I can beat your brains out without any one hearing about it.

Harvey

(enters) Where's Warren?

Ananias

What do you want him for?

Harvey

It's time to contest the will in court and he hasn't a lawyer there

Warren

(enters with newspaper in hands)

Ananias

Well, here he is now.

Harvey

Warren, they're contesting the will in court. Haven't you got a lawyer. I'm going to make you lose that money.

Warren

I don't have to now.

Harvey

Why not?

Warren

It's already lost. (hands them paper) The bank is busted.

All

What!

Warren

Practically every penny we had was invest in shares and bonds in the People's State bank, and it went to the rocks.

Harvey
No, surely not.

Warren
Yes, The Wiemer estate is notworth a dime now.

Harvey
You---you mean we haven't any money at all?

Warren
Not a nickel.

Ananias
Hot dog! Oh boy, we're broke now.

Clarabella
Oh this is just terrible. Now my daughter can't marry you.

Warren
But what if your daughter says she will marry me in spite of all this ill fortune?

Clarabella
She won't. Oh this is just terrible.

Harvey
Why, Warren, what are we going to do? How will we live?

Warren
Well, I'll live just the same as I've always lived.

Ananias
And you'll either work or starve now, you poor sap.

Harvey
What, me work?

Ananias
Yes, I know where you can get a good job.

Harvey
Where?

Ananias
Selling pork in Jearusalem.

Clarabella
Oh dear, I must find my daughter, and tell her what has happened.
(Lucille and Parker enter to wedding music. Lucille carries a bouquet of flowers, and he a marriage liscense)
Lucille, what's the meaning of this?

Lucille
Parker, and I are married mother.

All
Married!

Clarabella
My heavens, what did you marry him for--

Lucille
For a million dollars, and for love.

Clarabella
What do you mean?

Lucille
His rich uncle died and left him a fortune.

Clarabella
Well, the dear boy, I always did say he was just the man you should marry.

Lucille
Yes, he is the man that I have always loved.

Warren
Lucille, surely you're joking?

Lucille
(kisses Parker) Am I? (laughs) You poor sap did you think I loved you? You tramp---ranch in the goldne west---no such life for Lucille, is there, Parker dear.

Parker
No, darling

Ananias

Hey, Clarabella, my sugar lump, are you going back on me too?

Clarabella

Do you think I'd go out west on a ranch with you? How absurd! Come, daughter, let's go and make plans for the honeymoon.

(Lucille and Parker exit first, snubbing them all, then Clarabella goes directly in front of Ananias, and turns her nose way up in the air. He makes a kick at her just as she jumps through the door)

Ananias

I'll kick her brains out yet. (laughs) Well, pard, we were worth a million an hour ago, but now we aint worth a damn.

Warren

(sighing) I guess its the highways for us again, old pard. (puts his arm around Ananias) And I thought her love was pure.

Ananias

Pure as a running sewer! Come on, there's a freight train leaving town tonight. I've already reserve two berths for us. (they start)

Harvey

Wait---(I'll ride with you.

Ananias

All right, but you'll have take a lower berth!
